TO BE PUBLISHED APRIL FIRST
THE
LITTLE RED HOUSE IN THE HOLLOW

By Amanda B. Hall

¶ This story of an Irish-American family by the name of Haggin is as tonic and refreshing to the reader as a salt sea breeze in July.

¶ Sundown Peter, lovable, but wholly irresponsible; Daphne Haggin, the dreamer whose little bark of idealism is almost wrecked; Andrew Pritchard, strong and resourceful, even if a little crude compared to the white suited, artistic "Win;" Bridget Harrigan, with a heart as big as her body, who lords it over the Haggin youngsters with an iron hand; all enter into this clean, sweet and wholesome story, and it is with real enjoyment that one wanders through the fields of clover and purple asters to "The Little Red House in the Hollow."

¶ Amanda B. Hall, the author, is already well known to discriminating readers of magazines, although this is her first long story. During the last three years, Miss Hall has had eighteen short stories and two novelettes published in periodicals. The publishers feel confident that "The Little Red House in the Hollow" will cause both the trade and the reading public to look with keen interest for future work by this author.

12 mo. Cloth. Jacket and inlay in full color.

Four illustrations. Frontispiece in color. $1.35 net.

"CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS"

CARE OF DODD MEAD CO 4TH AVE AND 30 ST NEWYORK

GENTLEMEN AS A BOOKSELLER, IT HAS BEEN TO MY PROFIT IF NOT MY PLEASURE TO SELL THOUSANDS OF COPIES OF THE "GLAD MAD BAD" VARIETY OF NEW NOVELS WHERE THE JUVENILE CORRECTOR OF DESTINES FIGURES AS THE GOD IN THE MACHINE, EXUDING CHEER ON EVERY PAGE AND AIDING AND ABETTING CUPID IN LEADING ESTRANGED COUPLES TO THE ALTAR, WHEN MY ATTENTION WAS CALLED TO THE DODD MEAD OFFER OF FIFTY DOLLARS FOR A CRITICAL LETTER ON "CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS" I SAID "NOT EVEN FOR FIFTY."

I'VE NEVER READ A GLAD BOOK YET AND DON'T INTEND DOING SO NOW." BUT THREE MEMBERS OF THE STAFF READ THE ADVANCE COPY SENT US AND THREE LETTERS OF CRITICISM WERE PASSED TO ME FOR APPROVAL, I WAS TEMPTED TO READ THE BOOK AND YIELDED, HENCE THIS LETTER. "CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS" IS TO MY MIND ONE OF THE MOST LIKEABLE LITTLE GIRLS I HAVE EVER MET WITHIN THE COVERS OF A BOOK. SHE IS NO CHERUB SPROUTING WINGS BUT A FLESH-BLOOD MITE OF HUMANITY SUCH AS ANY PARENT WOULD BE GLAD TO "SNUGGLE" AND FROM THE TIME SHE ANNOUNCES HERSELF AS "HANNAH'S CARLYN" TO JOSEPH STAGO, THE CRUSTY HARDWARE DEALER OF SUNRISE COVE, TO THE DAY WHEN HER LONG-MOURNED PARENTS ARE RESTORED TO HER I FOLLOWED CAROLYN'S ADVENTURES WITH INTEREST AND YEARNING, GLORIED WITH HER IN HER CONQUEST OF THE HEARTS OF THE LIKEABLE PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN SUNRISE COVE AND IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF THE CORNERS, TREMBLED FOR HER SAFETY WHEN SHE WAS ADRIFT WITH CHET ON THE ICE FLOE IN THE COVE AND HEAVED A SIGH OF RELIEF WHEN THE LAST CHAPTER BROUGHT THE BOOK TO A HAPPY CONCLUSION. AS LONG AS PEOPLE ARE HUMAN THEY WILL BE INTERESTED IN "CAROLYN". AS LONG AS CHILDHOOD APPEALS TO PARENTHOOD CAROLYN WILL BE LOVED AND WHILE CHILDREN DELIGHT IN RE-LIVING THE LIVES OF THEIR FICTION HEROES (AS ALL NOVEL READERS DO) CAROLYN WILL HAVE A HOST OF ADMIRERS. EXPRESS ONE HUNDRED COPIES OF CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS AS A STARTER CHARGING ME WITH HALF CARGAGE WILL ORDER MORE BY FREIGHT LATER VERY TRULY YOURS

"CAROLYN OF THE CORNERS"—5 Editions since January 31st"Every copy sold will sell another"— says James W. LeGallez of George W. Jacobs Co., Philadelphia, and many other people in the trade are equally enthusiastic.

"Two and one-half hours of solid enjoyment interspersed with many chuckles. 'Carolyn of the Corners' is surely a worth-while book to recommend to everybody, both young and old, and I am sure that every copy sold will sell another. I have had the extreme pleasure of commending 'Carolyn' to many of my friends and in every instance they came back with the one voice, 'You were right. "Carolyn of the Corners" is a peach.'—James W. LeGallez, George W. Jacobs Co., Phila.

"The book does not preach at you—it is too full of adventure and interest to do that."—Mary E. Clark, Hills, McLean & Haskins, Binghamton, N. Y.

"Even after a second reading of the 'Look Up Book,' an attempt for honest criticism becomes honest eulogy. Would there were more 'Carolyns'."—M. E. Peppin, Newbegin's, San Francisco.

"In Carolyn May we have a normal child. . . . Her's was a love and trust that conquered the dignity of the Quaker, the grouch of the crusty old bachelor, aroused a conscience buried beneath years of selfish living and caused the minister to preach a more practical and helpful religion. The story appeals equally to old and young and deserves a right royal welcome everywhere."—Etta Hill, Norman-Remington Co., Baltimore.

"To read it all over again is a temptation too strong to be resisted and that to one who has access to all the newest books."—Effie C. Hubley, Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn.

"'Carolyn of the Corners' is not a book for cold analysis and criticism. It is a book for warm-blooded people to laugh, thrill and grow moist-eyed over."—A. D. Lyman, Pilgrim Press, Boston, Mass.

"Carolyn May Cameron is just a nice, lovable little girl with none of the exaggerated precocity so common in children of fiction. A very enjoyable tale, and will find a friend in every member of the household, from father down to the watch-dog."—Maude Abbott, W. B. Read & Co., Bloomington, Ill.

"It is difficult to write a letter about 'Carolyn of the Corners'—because there is so much to say that is good."—Margaret M. Morton, John Wanamaker, Phila.

"With none of the inane priggishness so characteristic of child-centered fiction."—Anna F. Taylor, Charles Scribner's Sons.

Spring Announcements of New Books

MARCH 9TH

THE SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT Number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for many years has been the standard trade reference list of new and forthcoming books. It is fully comprehensive in that it gives a careful index by title and author of the prospective output, and it is usefully descriptive by reason of the many advertised announcements including practically every publishing house of importance in the United States.

As this issue is extensively used thruout the season for reference by all interested in the purchase of new books, its value to publishers is obvious.

Lists for the index and copy for advertisements must reach us at once to insure inclusion.

In international policy Trotzky is not only the hero of the hour, but perhaps the most outstanding and startling figure of the whole war.

Professor GILBERT MURRAY, Oxford University, in The N. Y. Times, February 7, 1918.

The Philadelphia North American, in its leading editorial of February 18, 1918, "Mr. WILSON and Mr. TROTZKY," says:

To Mr. Trotzky the world owes the smashing of the system of secret peace parleys, and President Wilson justly follows that lead. The Bolshevik statesman laid down a set of principles—no annexations, no indemnities, self-determination of peoples, and so on—which the president has adopted and ably elucidated.

LEON TROTZKY, the author of The Bolsheviks and World Peace

for the writing of which he is now under sentence of imprisonment in Germany, has written the story of the Russian Revolution of 1917 and a keen criticism of the acts of the Kerensky Provisional Government which led to its downfall and the rise of the Bolsheviks in November.

This is the LATEST, MOST TIMELY AND ABSORBING ACCOUNT OF RUSSIAN
EVENTS FROM THE PEN OF THE LEADING ACTOR.

"The Bolsheviks and World Peace" is now in its fourth edition and is reported among the "best sellers" in all the leading cities.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men of course do seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves, by way of amends, to be a help and ornament thereunto."—BACON.

"THE NEXT THIRTY YEARS"

IT is the high privilege of the publisher not only to keep the keys to the stored up knowledge of a people but also to play no little part in the stimulating and directing of the constructive thought of that people. To him in both these capacities the recent presidential address of Viscount Bryce to the British Academy under the above title contains much matter for careful pondering.

The old world of before the war seems rolled up as a scroll by the compelling hands of present events, yet in fields as diverse as ethnology and philology, political history and literary history, the mental sciences and archaeology, the political sciences and law, Viscount Bryce points men to old tasks unfulfilled, to new tasks on old subjects yet to be completed ere the past can be filed away as completed. In the field of ancient history Viscount Bryce's own discoveries in a Roman family library as well as the work of the Historical Manuscripts Commission lead him to urge scholars to much unused material awaiting them in such sources. "Books on Roman history well worth studying (such as those of Greenidge, Pelham, Seeck, Ferrero) have continued to appear. There are still unsolved problems in Athenian and Roman constitutional history. . . . There are controversies regarding the trustworthiness of well-known historical portraiture. . . ." The publisher's task in regard to more recent history is even greater: "In England we have not yet any quite satisfactory history, critical, impartial, and philosophical, of France, or Germany, or Spain, much less of India or Russia." We need, he points out, a Tocqueville to visit Australasia and South America. In archaeology much important work yet awaits the careful pick of the searcher in Egypt, North Africa, Syria, Asia Minor, Greece, Central Asia, Peru. In ethnology Viscount Bryce emphasizes our responsibility for the preservation of the rich life of primitive peoples which our civilization has fast been obliterating. In philology he points scholars to the tempting fields offered by the Etruscan, Cretan and Hittite tongues—tho we venture that a publisher would need more than imagination to wax enthusiastic over a manuscript on Hittite philology!

So much for the past. Of the future Viscount Bryce has much to say and draws a fascinating picture of fields ripe for harvest: In economics problems of land tenure, capital and labor, immigration, taxation, tariffs, wages and currency are far from settled and have in some cases been rendered even more acute by the war and its concomitants, such as the enormous speculation in Bolshevism we are now witnessing. In the physical sciences the horizon seems as boundless as ever; in only a few works of detailed scholarship, in fact, is the end in sight; in only a few other activities, as archæology, can it be conceived that man's work will ever be complete.

And finally, Lord Bryce's program is of peculiar interest to America, as the New York Evening Post well points out, for "our continent may be left comparatively uninjured by the storm that is devastating so much of Europe. We have steadily taken a more and more prominent part, tho always a minor one, in maintaining many of the exact and humane sciences; and where we have always followed, now we may have the opportunity and duty of furnishing leadership in some." It is this Opportunity that bids fair to make the coming years among the most fascinating American publishing has yet known, and this Duty which will doubtless make these years notable in the record of the part played by American publishers in the constructive scholarship of the world.

THE usual sudden awakening of Congress at this season to the mass of unfinished business before it may mean that friends of the Stephens bill will again have to see their pet measure give way before more pressing matters related to the war. Meanwhile, however, the movement in favor of price maintenance is by no means at a standstill: The American Fair Trade League has just announced its intention of sending out five thousand copies of the effective statement by Mr. Charles E. Butler, of Brentano's, before the Federal Trade Commission last fall—an able summary of which the book-trade has good cause to feel proud as it is reported to have made a deep impression on the members of the Commission. The straightforward attitude of the Colgate Co. in the statement recently reprinted in these columns is another case in point; to the offer of the Attorney General to withdraw the Government's suit under the Sherman law provided the Colgate policy be given up of refusing to sell to dealers damaging the manufacturers by price-cutting, the latter replied simply that "believing that we are in no manner breaking the law, we have decided to contest the suit. . . . For if he [the retailer] sells at cost or below cost to advertise his business, he injures our good will and makes our articles undesirable for other dealers to handle, as they wish to be assured of a profit and not a loss." One of the strongest arguments for price maintenance rests on the frank support of just such old established yet thoroly progressive businesses as the one hundred and twelve-year-old Colgate Co. and of such leaders in the movement for better business practice as R. H. Ingersoll & Bro. Such outspoken championing of the price maintenance cause is massing a weight of argument that will tell heavily when the question does finally come up for consideration.

THE slowness of the past holiday season in getting started was reflected in turn in a distinct tendency on the part of booksellers to "go slow" during January. This retail uncertainty, together with difficulties of transportation and manufacture, has in turn lessened the crop of early new year books. At the present time, however, a general forward movement is evident, books are beginning to appear more rapidly and belated travelers are leaving for their long spring jaunts. Business is reported good in New York City and the chief complaint that comes from dealers in other cities is due to difficulties in getting shipments of stock thru by freight or express; freight has in fact been practically abandoned and in many cases publishers have been bearing half the additional expense of express shipments. There is good cheer for the future in the interview with H. Gordon Selfridge, former partner in Marshall Field & Co., and now owner of the great London department store, in the current number of Printers' Ink: In 1917 Selfridge & Co., Ltd., earned profits of approximately $1,300,000. The increase in business over 1916 was $3,350,000, which year had in turn been 50 per cent. above 1915, despite the fact that 1915 was the largest year in the history of the store up to that time. "The gross amount of business done by retail stores thruout Great Britain has shown a steady and satisfactory increase for some time past," according to Mr. Selfridge. "No one in his senses would expect that it could be identical in character with the goods sold in 1913. . . . But the business which has enough intelligence to take these [changed conditions] into consideration can do a satisfactory amount of trade and show a satisfactory amount of profits."

A CURIOUS copyright question arises in connection with the piracy of certain portions of "Pollyanna" thru recitations recorded on Victrola discs. The original, of course, was copyrighted, and the question is whether the copyright protects against such reproduction. It would seem that unauthorized reproduction might be prevented under the broad term "version" used in connection with literary works, but the dictionary meaning of this word leaves that in doubt. Colonel Olin, one of the best of copyright legal authorities, in a letter printed on another page, holds that the specific protection of phonographic reproductions and the previous definitive decision of the United States Supreme Court involve the omission from the law of protection of other works against phonographic reproduction. It might have been expected that phonographic proprietors would seek to strengthen rather than weaken the copyright law so far as it is affected by making precedents because of their large need of copyright protection. The royalties paid to Caruso, Mischa Elman, Alma Gluck and other executants have been fortunes in themselves, in striking contrast to the meager 2c. per roll awarded to the musical composer under the Washburn amendment embodied in the copyright code. When this Act of 1909 was passed this property value in the work of the executant artist was absolutely unknown and not thought of, and it seems probable that neither the executant nor the record proprietor can be protected in the valuable property thus developed. In both instances the Copyright

Code needs strengthening, and it may reasonably be hoped that record proprietors will join in making protection for all classes of copy-right works complete.

IN the suit of Roger Foster v. Callaghan & Co., in which Mr. Foster sought to enjoin the publication of a book on Federal practice on the ground that it interfered with the sale of his own earlier work covering that subject issued by the same publishers, Judge Manton of the United States District Court on January 30th handed down a decision denying a motion to dismiss the case, which therefore has yet to be argued on the law and the facts. The suit against Baker, Voorhis & Co. in connection with the sale of the book was discontinued under arrangement that Callaghan & Co., whose legal habitat is Illinois, would appear in the New York district as defendants.

ONE of the most attractive and convincing arguments we have yet seen in extenuation of increases in the price of books during war-time has just come to our belated attention in a recent number of The Piper, the readable little Houghton Mifflin house organ edited by Mr. George H. Mifflin. The "Piper," the genius of the Boston house, makes a journey to the Riverside Press and tells in informal fashion of some of the problems of war-time book manufacturing. Booksellers would do well to have a few copies on hand to give out to such customers as insist on feeling aggrieved.

A PUBLISHING "WAR BABY" How the Banta Co. Has Had Twice To Double Its Plant in Nine Months

IT looks almost as tho when the George Banta Publishing Co. established a publishing business out in that "neck of the woods" in Wisconsin known as Menasha it was giving the challenge direct to the old adage that "If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten pathway to his door." Before the United States entered the war, in April of last year, and even before August 1914, however, the users of the particular kind of books published by the Banta Co. had marked a narrow but deep track to the Menasha firm—it was known as the military publishing house of the country. The war has since brought several strong and thriving competitors into the field, but meanwhile the pathway to Menasha has become a veritable roadway.

Up to the time the United States entered the war the marketing and distribution of military text and reference books was done almost entirely thru the service organizations such as the United States Infantry Association and the U. S. Cavalry Association and thru the Post Exchanges at home and abroad. The discounts were short and the volume small so that there was no inducement to the regular book-trade to handle the business had they been able to reach it. The Public Printer was able to supply all of the official War Department publications direct to the members of the service. Then the growth of the Plattsburg Idea of making officers of civilians attracted a great number of patriotic young men who sought every means of becoming proficient in the military profession. Colonel Moss' "Manual of Military Training" had been in use in a majority of the military schools and colleges in the United States and it is so well adapted to training camp use that it became known as the "bible" of the training camps and was eagerly bought and devoured by the energetic officer-students. These men had been habituated in civil life to buying their books from retail stores and the demand became so insistent, especially in the east, that the dealers were forced to handle them even at the short discount.

The Banta Co. had been manufacturing military books for officer authors who were also their own publishers since 1906 and had established in 1913 a military book sales and distributing department for the convenience of these authors who were often on duty outside the country and therefore unable to care for their own interests properly. The service rendered was so satisfactory that it attracted a majority of the best known authorities. In April, 1917, the business of this Service Department was handled over one desk, but it grew over night into a large organization under the guidance of an ex-member of the service. The first thing accomplished was the securing of better discounts from the authors for the ever increasing list of dealer customers. Special catalogs were sent out addressed to the members of the Officers' Reserve Corps and the National Guard which was then mobilized ready to go to camp. Complete loose-leaf dealer catalogs were sent to the trade listing the seventy-six Banta titles.

Competition for such a business, of course, sprang up and the dealers, entirely unacquainted with the subject of military education, were in a quandary to know just what to buy. As a matter of fact, very few of their customers knew what they wanted and it was not until the instructors recommended certain books that the atmosphere cleared. The Banta Co. contended that since nobody knew exactly what was wanted it was unfair to unload large quantities of books on the unsuspecting dealers. They offered, therefore, a consignment arrangement with a certain number of each of their titles to reliable dealers and sent with them a simple report blank so that they could keep in close touch with the market. The success of the plan was immediate, and as fast as satisfactory agents were secured they were provided with posters and catalogs bearing their own imprint. Advertisements were inserted in local and camp newspapers and many of the dealers issued their own catalogs and used various other methods of reaching the field. An example of this, the sign-board executed by Mr. R. E. Dunbar of the Vancouver Stationery Co., of Vancouver, Wash., opposite the main entrance to Camp Lewis, is shown elsewhere.

The net result of this intelligent use of the opportunities presented by the war is seen in the fact that the Banta Co. has twice had to double the capacity of its plant since April to keep abreast of the demand for the 76 titles on its list.

THE NOBEL PRIZE WINNERS IN LITERATURE

THE announcement some time since that the Nobel prize in literature for the year 1917 had been awarded to one Karl Gjellerup and one Henrik Pontoppidan naturally suggests—at this time when we are suddenly becoming such internationalists in our reading—that these men might be worth importing. The only book by either of them that has appeared in America is "The Pilgrim Kaminita" published by Dutton. Both Gjellerup and Pontoppidan are best-sellers among the Danish authors surviving from the older generation; both are, curiously enough, ministers' sons, and about the same age.

Henrik Pontoppidan, according to a writer in the London Times, is unquestionably the leading living novelist of Denmark. He has gained that position by his strenuous independence of foreign models and by the ceaseless industry he has expended on the collection and distribution of facts regarding Danish experience and character. His principal rival, Gjellerup, is a chameleon who takes his color from whatever intellectual object he rests upon, whereas Pontoppidan has kept himself unaffected by all contemporary influence; and it is in this that the singular contrast between the two distinguished authors principally exists. Pontoppidan was born in 1857 in his father's parsonage in Fredericia. Anchoy little tales about Jutland peasants; He began his literary life by publishing melhis first good book was a collection of "Village Tales" in 1883. "From the Huts" was still better; it dealt with the relation of the paid labor to the peasant proprietor. Altho Pontoppidan began by writing very short tales, he has advanced to the composition of enormous novels, his masterpiece, "Lykke Per," the first volume of which appeared in 1898, having extended to eight or nine volumes.

Karl Gjellerup, Pontoppidan's rival and the sharer with him of this year's prize, was encouraged to write very early: he was the precocious darling of a sentimental literary coterie. At the time of his early youth fashion had generally turned back to the study of the Danish classics, and particularly to the lyrists of the earlier half of the century. From the start, however, he was fascinated by the romantic writers of Germany; and he modelled himself, first on Schiller, next on Heine.

He published, with but an indifferent success at first, little pamphlets of verse. His earliest poem of any importance was the "Antigonos" of 1880, an attempt to restore the early Christian era. "Rödtjörn" ("Pink May") in 1881, was a collection of Heinesque lyrics of a satirical or argumentative kind. These works were not warmly received; but Gjellerup formed the acquaintance of Georg Brandes, then already the dictator of Danish letters, and attached himself violently to him. Apparently Brandes served as inspirational advisor to this young enthusiast, and weaned him from a too exclusive study of German verse and prose to English literature. Accordingly Gjellerup plunged into Swinburne, Shelley, and even Darwin, later to react violently in favor of German Kultur which finally absorbed his life. He left Denmark, married a German wife and settled permanently in Dresden.

Altho, however, Gjellerup has been practically a German for the last thirty years he has not ceased to look to Denmark for his chief audience. He has been a laborious and persistent writer of novels, plays and poems. His romances are sentimental portraits of modern life in Germany or Denmark, and he is fond of introducing a considerable number of poems into his prose text. . . . His prose is said to be better than his verse; in the long line of his novels, two, according to the critic in the Times, may be commended to the curious reader: "Minna," 1889, and "The Mill" ("Möllen"), 1896. In spite of his exotic sympathies, he has enjoyed, and still enjoys, considerable popularity in Denmark.

NEW YORK BINDERS ADOPT UNIFORM TRADE CUSTOMS

AT a recent meeting of the Employing Bookbinders' Association of New York, Inc., the following standard trade customs were adopted governing all work done thruout the shops of the city from March 1, 1918:

1. Material:

All material furnished to the binder by the cutomer or his authorized agent, such as printed sheets, unprinted paper, jackets, dies, plates, etc., shall be delivered to the binder, all carrying charges prepaid.

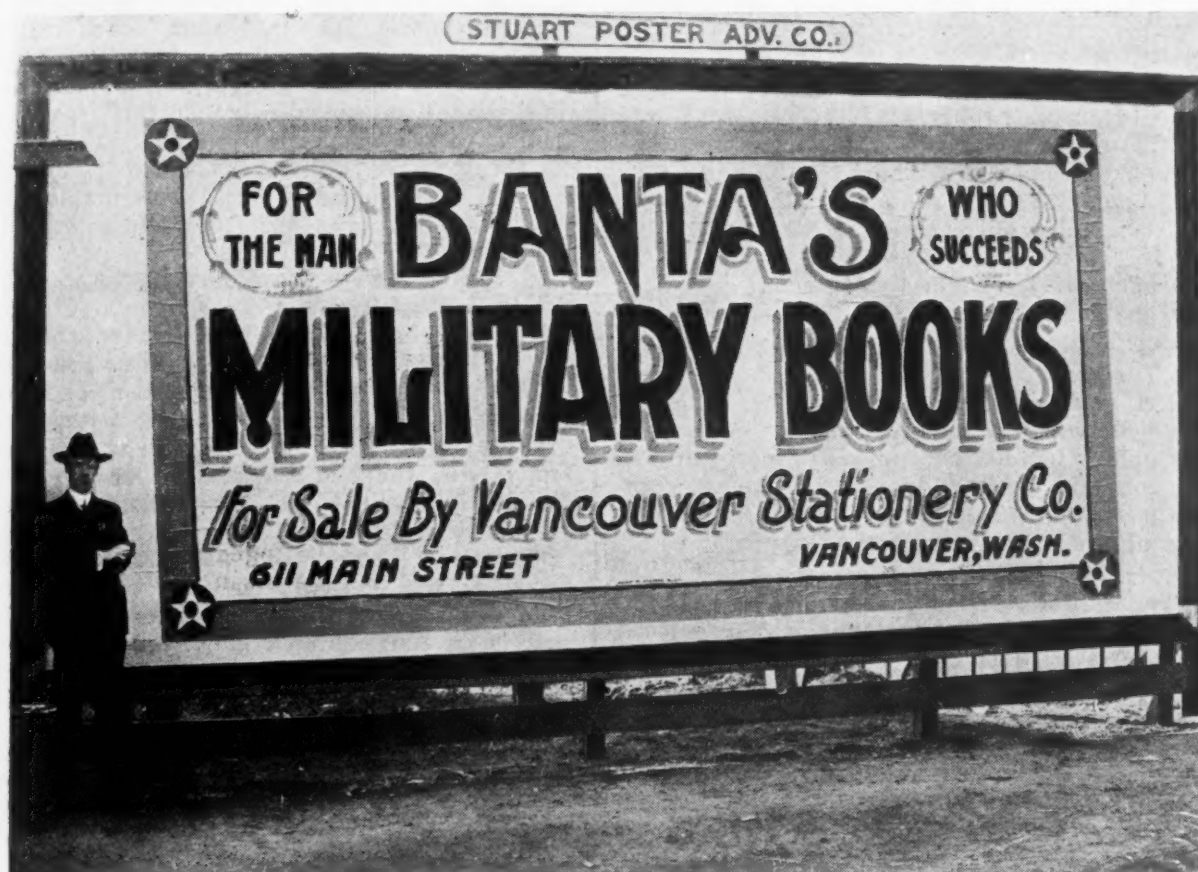

Coated stock must be delivered flat in cases.

Printed sheets must be delivered properly jogged up and correctly imposed for the binder's folding equipment, otherwise an additional charge will be made.

2. Cases, wrappers, etc.:

All receptacles such as wooden cases, wrappers or packing material which contained merchandise delivered to the binder by the cutomer or his authorized agent, become the property of the binder, unless a separate and distinct agreement is made for the return of

R. E. DUNBAR AND THE SIGN-BOARD HE HAS ERECTED AT THE ENTRANCE TO CAMP LEWIS, WASHINGTON same when an additional charge will be made.

3. Option to fold, etc.:

The binder will fold, plate, gather and sew, all unordered sheets received, except a separate and distinct agreement is made in writing covering certain steps in the manufacture, the doing of which would be against the customer's best interest. Any work performed will be promptly charged for.

4. Material supplied:

Whenever any material, cloth, leather, paper, etc., is supplied by the customer, an additional charge of 15% on the value thereof will be added for handling same.

5. Defective work:

The binder will not be responsible or liable in any way for defects in paper or printing which appear on the inside of folded signatures.

The quoted price includes only the regular examination of the completed work, which consists of the following operations:—

Freeing the end papers, observing that the book is cased in properly, once fanning thru the leaves, and rubbing off the cover preparatory to wrapping.

For a special examination a separate and distinct agreement in writing must be made, which will carry an additional charge to be agreed upon.

6. Wrapping:

The quoted price covers only delivery of the books without wrappers. A separate and distinct agreement must be made and additional charges fixed for wrapping books with jackets; solid in packages; sealing; wrapping individually; inserting books in wooden boxes, cartons, or folding boxes; affixing labels; inserting circulars.

7. Delivery:

The quoted price includes delivery in that portion of the Borough of Manhattan, New York City, south of 59th Street between the East and the North Rivers. Delivery in other portions of the city carries an additional charge.

Books will be delivered in trolleys or cases on the floor of the publisher; cases and trolleys to be returned to binder via binder's truck within three days after receipt by customer.

Delivery in part or portions less than the full binding order will carry an additional charge unless otherwise provided in agreement.

8. Care and keep:

The binder will promptly bill the customer for work performed on all bound books held in stock by the binder on December 31st of each and every year, payment to be made within thirty days.

All sheets or bound stock remaining in the custody of the binder one year or more from date of receipt, inactive, shall be subject to a charge for care and keep.

9. Dies:

The quotation does not cover standard brass dies, whether for ink, lead, gold or blank stamping. These must be supplied by the customer unless separate agreement is made.

Where customer supplies zinc etchings or binders' electros necessitating additional make-ready, an extra charge will be made to the customer.

10. Customer's property:

All material furnished by customer, and completed books are held at customer's risk, and binder assumes no responsibility for loss or damage by fire, water, insects, rats, dirt or from any other cause whatsoever.

Binder only insures the value of his labor and material on all orders until the goods are charged.

11. Terms:

Net cash payment thirty days. Deferred payment will have interest added.

Binder's lien attaches on all property in possession and until delivery to customer, notwithstanding the giving of credit or accepting of notes or guarantee of payment.

12. Acceptance:

The quotation is subject to acceptance within ten days. Until acceptance is received, the quotation is subject to change without notice. The binder may cancel order without liability within five days after acceptance by customer, if credit of customer is found not satisfactory.

13. Delays:

The binder is not responsible for any delay caused by accident, fire, strikes, water or any other cause not herein enumerated beyond control.

14. Quantities:

The quotation covers only the specific quantity stated to be bound as an initial order.

Should, however, the customer in the initial order call for a part or lot less than the entire edition, then it is understood that the binder, on such parts or lots, will add any increase in the case of labor or material to the quoted price.

15. Count:

The binder makes no hand count on receipt of sheets or other material unless separate and distinct agreement is made, carrying an additional charge for service.

For the purpose of this contract, the basis of count shall be the folded and gathered record made as soon after the receipt of sheets as convenient.

16. Agreement:

No verbal agreement, or representation by salesmen, shall be binding unless confirmed in writing.

PHONOGRAPH REPRODUCTIONS OF COPYRIGHTED WORKS

GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM, Secretary of the American Publishers' Copyright League, has submitted to the members of the League the following opinion by S. H. Olin, the Copyright League's counsel, in the case involving the reproduction of chapters of "Pollyanna" on mechanical musical instruments:

The Victor Talking Machine Company has published two records, each giving a recitation or reading by a certain Sallie Hamlin from a copyrighted novel "Pollyanna," each record being practically a chapter, verbatim, with the exception of certain elimination of description, etc. I am asked whether this is an infringement of copyright.

I assume that "Pollyanna" is a literary work and not a drama, and on this assumption, I think that there has been no infringement of copyright.

In 1908 the Supreme Court in the case of White-Smith Musical Co. vs. Apollo Co. decided that the making of perforated rolls to aid in the reproduction thru an instrument of a musical composition was not a copy or publication of the same within the meaning of the Copyright Act. This decision was in harmony with the English law under the then existing Copyright Act, as declared by the English Courts.

The court quoted with approval an earlier decision, which held that the reproduction thru the agency of a phonograph of the sounds of musical instruments playing copyrighted music, was not a copy or publication of the same within the meaning of the act.

The statute interpreted in these cases was R. S., Section 4952, part of the then existing Copyright Act. It gave to the "author, inventor, designer or proprietor of any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, copying, executing, finishing and vending the same." Protection to books and musical compositions was given in the same language, and the decision in White-Smith Musical Co. vs. Apollo Co. forbids us to think that making a phonograph record of a book is copying or publication of it within the meaning of the act.

On March 4, 1909, the American Copyright Act was amended. In regard to musical works by Section 1 (e) and in regard to dramas by Section 1 (d), protection was given against reproduction by mechanical means. Such reproduction was under certain circumstances prohibited, but no such provision was made in the case of a literary work, as to which the owner of a copyright has the exclusive right (a) to print, reprint, publish, copy and vend the copyrighted work, (b) to translate the copyrighted work into other languages or dialects, or make any other version thereof, if it be a literary work; to dramatize it, if it be a non-dramatic work. The act made no provision for mechanical reproduction of literary works, but used the language for protecting these which had been used in the former Act and had been interpreted in the decisions which I have mentioned.

The English Copyright Act of 1911 gives better protection to the owner of a literary work. By Section 1 (2) (d) the copyright includes the sole right "in the case of a literary, dramatic or mechanical work, to make any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film or contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered." And the statute further gives the "sole right to produce or reproduce the work, or any substantial part thereof, in any material form whatsoever."

To give the author of a literary work such protection as he has in England, and as the author of a musical or dramatic work has in this country, the Copyright Act should be amended by Congress.

Conducted by Miss Bessie Graham of the Philadelphia Booksellers' School

LESSON VII

Books on Latin America

THE Pan-American Union, established in 1890, for the purpose of fostering a goodwill between the two Americas, has already borne much fruit. There is to-day a fast-spreading interest in the history, commerce, and literature of South America, which cannot fail to lead to a better understanding and sympathy.

The appearance of the new magazine, Inter-America, with its alternating Spanish and English issues, testifies to the growing feeling of solidarity.

The increase in South American travel and trade has led to such a rapid multiplication of books on the subject, that the following list is offered for the bookseller's aid in choosing among them:

GUIDE BOOKS

Hale, Albert. "Practical Guide to Latin America." Small. $1.

(A standard work. Gives all necessary information about preparation, cost, routes, sight-seeing, in South America, Central America, Mexico, and the West Indies.)

Hirst, W. F. "Guide to South America." Macmillan. $1.75.

(An English authority. Tabulated information about hotels, transportation, points of interest. Statistics for the settler as well as for the traveler.)

Peck, Annie S. The South American Tour. Doran. $3.

THE BAN placed upon British, French, and Italian newspapers at the German frontier has now been removed, and these publications, as well as American newspapers, are being allowed to enter Germany.

BOOKS AFFECTED BY GOVERNMENT LICENSING ORDER

"BOOKS and all printed matter and materials necessary or convenient for their manufacture" are included in the sweeping plan announced in the President's proclamations of February 15 whereby imports and exports are put under government control by a strict licensing plan. The new plan went into effect the following day, with the exception that allowance is to be made for goods in transit on February 16.

The government has been at great pains to point out that this drastic interference with foreign trade is rendered necessary by the need for assuring ample munitions for our army in France and for conserving our domestic resources for our own people and our allies.

ANNIVERSARY LUNCHEON TO MR. VOGELIUS

THE junior directors of Henry Holt & Co. celebrated the fifty-seventh anniversary in the book business of Joseph F. Vogelius, treasurer of the company, on February 1st by a luncheon at the Yale Club. The reminiscences of Mr. Vogelius and Mr. Holt were an interesting feature of the occasion.

In 1861, before he was thirteen, Mr. Vogelius began his career in the book business as errand boy to Frederick Leypoldt, the Philadelphia dealer in foreign books, later to become the founder of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. In 1866 Mr. Leypoldt, who had begun to publish on a small scale, moved his business to New York and entered into a partnership with Henry Holt under the firm name of Leypoldt and Holt. When Mr. Holt bought out his partner and began to expand the business, it fell to Mr. Vogelius' lot to manufacture the books and for more than half a century his hand has been in every book published by Henry Holt & Co.

CORRIGAN-BOBBS-MERRILL VERDICT REDUCED

THE $35,000 verdict obtained by Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan of New York against the Bobbs-Merrill Co. in the suit for libel over Bronson Howard's "God's Man" has been cut to $25,000 by the Appellate Division. The higher court gave the magistrate the alternative of this reduction or a new trial of his action in the Supreme Court. The attorneys for the Bobbs-Merrill Co. announce that the case will be carried to the Court of Appeals.

It will be recalled that the author of the alleged libelous book devoted a chapter in his work to a story about the workings of a magistrate's court, to which he gave the subtitle "Justice à la Cornigan." Magistrate Corrigan sued for $200,000, contending that this chapter clearly referred to him and held him up to ridicule and contempt.

N. Y. "SUN" ISSUES NEW BOOK REVIEW MAGAZINE

WITH the issue of February 10 the New York Sun began a new twelve page Sunday literary supplement, "Books and the Book World." The book review section has heretofore been a feature of the Saturday morning Sun, but owing to the marked increase in the amount of book advertising carried during 1917, it was decided to promote this feature to the dignity of a section all its own. In addition to reviews long and short, the section features a page of excerpts from notable verse of the week, articles on literary subjects, notes on authors, a questions and answers department, and a bibliography of the new books of the week.

BOOK-TRADE ASSOCIATIONS

Philadelphia Association Elects Officers

At the February meeting of the Philadelphia Booksellers' Association at the Franklin Inn Club on February 15 the following officers were elected for the coming year: president, George W. Jacobs; vice-president, Charles Sessler; secretary, Rudolph G. Kornbau of the John C. Winston Co.; treasurer, Wm. M. Bains; members of the Board of Managers for three years: Ellis W. Bacon of the J. B. Lippincott Co., Walter Cox of Wanamaker's, H. C. Fox of the American Sunday School Union. The secretary reported a membership of 123 with 8 in the service of the United States. The average attendance during the year 1917 was 78 which was 50 per cent greater than that of any previous year.

After the dinner the Association was addressed by Corporal R. Derby Holmes, author of "A Yankee in the Trenches."

Ladies' Night at New York Booksellers' League

THE February dinner of the New York Booksellers' League was doubly notable: for the fact that it was Ladies' Night and for the excellence of the speakers of the evening. The usual contingent of "shy violets" among the men absented themselves, as usual on this annual occasion, but their places were filled by a generous number of guests—spelled with a capital G—notably an entire table of members of the Women's National Book Association. The speakers of the evening were enthusiastically applauded: "Demetra Vaka" (Mrs. Kenneth-Brown), author of "Haremlik," "The Heart of the Balkans," and other books, for her account of her efforts single-handed to bring about unity in Greece in support of the Allies, and Lieut. Bert Hall, a real live "soldier of fortune" and author of the new book, "Flying on Four Fronts," for his account of infantry and flying adventures told in a way that made those present forget all about the music and dancing scheduled to follow the dinner.

The following new members have joined the League since the last meeting: Philip M. Anderson, with G. P. Putnam's Sons; Louis Esposet, with Macmillan Co.; T. David Zukerman, with McDevitt-Wilson, Inc.; George Wilson, with Charles Scribner's Sons; W. Harry Longe, with Ronald Press Co.

OBITUARY NOTES

VERNON CASTLE's death last week recalls the fact that as well as being an aviator of renown and a dancer of equal fame he was also the author, conjointly with his wife, Irene Castle, of a book on dancing published by Harper in 1914, "Modern Dancing."

WILLIAM LOCKETT AGNEW, head of Thomas Agnew & Sons, art publishers, of London, Manchester, and Liverpool, died in London, England, on February 15. He was sixty years old.

PERSONAL NOTES

HENRY M. LEGLER, son of Henry E. Legler, late librarian of the Chicago Public Library, has become sales manager for the Open Court Publishing Co.

HERMAN J. BILL, with the Edward P. Judd Co. of New Haven, Conn., for the past 13 years, has taken a position with the Whiting Paper Co. as New England representative, with headquarters in Boston.

LOUIS C. PAGE, president of the Page Co., has purchased the Boston Evening Record as the head of a syndicate including Randolph C. Grew, banker; Earl L. Deland, publisher of the Record; and Carl A. Barrett, a member of the editorial staff.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN Co. has issued a compact catalog of its publications with new prices which went into effect Jan. 1, 1918.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. capitalized the "heatless Mondays" with customary alacrity by advertising "Reading for 'enforced holidays.'"

A BILL (S. 3174) has been introduced into the Senate by Senator Calder to amend the present law which fixes the postage on postcards at two cents so that the old rate of one cent shall be restored.

THE COURT has granted the demurrer of the Colgate Co. asking that its price maintenance suit be deferred until March 21, in spite of the protests of the Federal Trade Commission.

THE PAGE Co. is about to issue revised versions of two of the volumes in its Latin Republics of America Series, "Brazil and Her People of To-day" and "Mexico and Her People of To-day," both the work of Nevin O. Winter.

THE INFLUX of military manuals must not let booksellers overlook a new edition (the 17th by the way!) of the "Boy Scouts Handbook," published by the Boy Scouts of America, an indispensable guide for our young army behind the army as well as for all woodsmen and campers.

AMANDA HALL knows how to write the absorbing kind of story about real people that makes you forget everything—even the war.

"The Little Red House in the Hollow" (Jacobs) is full of wholesome and thoroly lovable people, the Irish Haggins, who probably have a goodly sprinkling of freckles and red locks, and ideals and names like Daphne.

H. A. BRUNO, late of the Royal Flying Corps, where he was under the instruction of Vernon Castle, has written a book of his adventures as an airman, to be published by Dodd, Mead sometime in April. In this book there is many an interesting reference to his late instructor.

EDGAR A. GUEST's new volume of verse, "Over Here," to be published by Reilly & Britton early in March, is said to be just as "folksey" as its predecessor, "Just Folks," and, altho the sub-title is "War Times Rhymes," these are the same simple people that one knew before the war made them play the home-heroes' part.

A NEW SCALE of electrotype charges has gone into effect in New York carrying approximately ten cents additional charge on all electros up to six inches and something less than that amount up to nine inches, above which size the prices range somewhat cheaper than under the old scale. All prices will hereafter be net.

THE BLOSSOM SHOP stories by Isla May Mullins are refreshing and natural—and particularly suited for that "awkward age" in girls' books between children's stories and "grown-up" stories. The fourth and last volume in the series, "The Mount Blossom Girls," has just been published by the Page Co., a book which tells of good friendships, sane work and wholesome romance.

Do you know what rank a gold maple leaf indicates? There are so many things about military insignia, customs, rules and tape of all colors about which the civilian is either hazy or entirely ignorant. "United States Army, Facts and Insignia" by Valdemar Paulsen, published by Rand, McNally, is one of those condensed, informative manuals that no one yearning for full military data can afford to miss.

A PROSPECTIVE April novel from the house of Putnam is Palmer Bend's "The Smiting of the Rock," a Western story laid in Oregon. The hero is confronted by the "love and duty clash" problem, nor does he follow the advice of a well known Sunnybrook-Farm character in letting "Duty go to smash," but manages to do both in a most hero-like manner, quite in keeping with the big, whole-hearted, strong-fisted manner of the West.

FOLLOWING HIS original ad. to the trade in these columns, in which he offered to send stock of Gerald Stanley Lee's new book, "The Air Line to Liberty," on a novel on-sale basis, Mr. Kennerley utilized the inside front cover page of the New Republic for February 16 for a full page ad. of this book in which neither author's nor publisher's name appeared: just, "By ———. It makes no difference who I am Anybody who cares can find out. [etc., etc.] All bookstores."

THE PRINT paper shortage raised the question of the suspension of the mailing list of the Congressional Record outside of the District of Columbia in the Senate on Tuesday of this week. In the course of the debate Senator Smoot urged that members refrain from placing unnecessary documents in the Congressional Record, and Senator Penrose said that under the prevailing practice the Record looks "like a copybook from a telegraph office."

HENRY HOLT & Co. recently stumbled upon what is said to be the only copy in New York City of Trotzky's outline of his revolutionary system originally published in 1906 in the "underground press" of Russia. The work is being translated with an introductory appreciation by M. J. Olgin, himself a Russian and the author of the notable work, "The Soul of the Russian Revolution," and will be published on February 26 under the title "Our Revolution."

PLANS FOR AN aeroplane trip from London to New York in a day are being made, according to an interview published in a recent issue of the London Daily Sketch. The plane, which is now being built at a Middlesex factory, will be piloted by Herbert Sykes, the famous airman, and the navigator will be Edgar Middleton, the author of "Airfare of Today and of the Future" just published in this country by Scribner's.

LEON TROTZKY's "The Russian Revolution of 1917," now in preparation by Boni & Liveright, was mistakenly announced in the advertising pages of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of February 16 as "The Russian Revolution." The trade should distinguish carefully among the Trotzky books being put forth at the present time: "The Bolsheviks and World Peace" was a Boni book; "Our Revolution," out this next week, a Holt book; and "The Russian Revolution of 1917," another Boni book.

PRIVATEs, SERGEANTS, LIEUTENANTS have written of their parts in the great conflict and now we have the story of a gunner. Albert N. Depew, who has been chief petty officer, U. S. Navy, private in the Foreign Legion and captain of a gun turret in the French Navy, in "Gunner Depew," published by the Reilly & Britton Co. early in March, tells of the remarkably varied experiences which were crowded into his two and a half years in the war. This young sailor boy won the croix de guerre at the Dardanelles, was captured by the Raider Moewe, fought the Turks at Gallipoli and was starved and tortured in German prison camps.

GROSSET & DUNLAP are keeping pace with the present shift in popular demand from fiction to war books by presenting a special list of ten reprint war books in addition to their six war reprints which found favor in 1917. Among the new reprints are "The First Hundred Thousand," "When the Prussians Came to Poland," "Fighting in Flanders," "Germany, the Next Republic?" and John Buchan's "The Battle of the Somme."

The Publishers' Weekly

Subscription Rates.

One year, postage prepaid in the United States, $5.00; foreign, $6.00.

Single copies, 10 cents. Educational Number, in leatherette, 50 cents, Christmas Bookshelf, 25 cents.

Advertising Rates.

Front section (full pages only)..... $35.00
(Back section, unspecified position)

One page .....	30 00
Half page .....	17 00
Quarter page .....	9 00
Eighth page .....	5 00
One-sixteenth page .....	3 50

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the headings of "BOOKS WANTED" and "BOOKS FOR SALE" book-trade subscribers are given under their own names five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertising for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding one hundred lines a year, a maximum of fifty lines under "Books Wanted" and fifty lines under "Books for Sale," and if over five lines are sent for either department in only one issue, or fifty lines for each department within the calendar year, the excess is at ten cents a line. Bills for this service will be rendered monthly. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "HELP WANTED" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 15 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.
